

I'm a 16 year old person living in Denmark. I'm born in Denmark, but my parents are from Iran (Islamic Republic of). I just finished primary school in Denmark and am now considering what my next step should be. I'm fluent in danish.
What educational path would you recommend for me?

Thanks for sharing that — you're at a really important point in your life, and it's great that you're thinking carefully about your next steps. In Denmark, after primary school (folkeskole), you typically have a few main educational paths to choose from, depending on your interests, strengths, and future goals.

Here's a breakdown of the main options you might consider, along with advice based on different types of interests:

1. Gymnasium (General Upper Secondary Education)

This is the most common choice if you're interested in going to university later on.

Types of gymnasiums:

- STX (Almen studentereksamen) – general academic subjects (humanities, social science, natural science).
- HHX (Højere handelseksamen) – business and economics focus.
- HTX (Højere teknisk eksamen) – technology and science focus.
- HF (Højere forberedelseseksamen) – a 2-year general program (often for older students or those who want a shorter route).

Best for you if:

- You're academic and enjoy studying subjects like math, science, languages, history, or business.
- You want to keep your university options open.

2. Erhvervsuddannelse (Vocational Education and Training – EUD)

This combines school education and apprenticeship. You can learn to become a mechanic, electrician, chef, health worker, carpenter, etc.

Best for you if:

- You want to start working earlier.
- You like practical, hands-on work.

- You're interested in skilled trades or care professions.

Some vocational paths also let you continue to university via EUX, which combines vocational training with academic subjects — a great middle ground.

3. EUX (Combined Vocational + Academic Program)

This is a hybrid: You get both a vocational qualification and a studentereksamen (like STX), giving you access to both work and university afterward.

Best for you if:

- You're interested in getting a profession but also want the option to go to university later.
- You're hardworking and want flexibility.

Advice Based on Personal Factors:

Since you:

- Are fluent in Danish,
- Were born and raised in Denmark,
- Have just finished folkeskole,
- Have a multicultural background (which is a strength!),

I'd suggest asking yourself:

- Do I like studying theoretical subjects, or do I prefer practical work?
- Do I want to go to university one day?
- Am I interested in business, tech, health, design, or something else?

If You're Still Unsure

That's completely normal. You can:

- Visit a UU-vejledning (youth guidance center) – they offer free help for young people choosing education.
- Try brobygning or praktik (introductory courses or internships) to test different paths.
- Talk to teachers or family friends in different professions.

Personal Tip

Many students with multicultural backgrounds thrive in areas like:

- Healthcare (nursing, medicine, social work),
- Business (especially international business),
- Engineering and tech,
- Public service or law (especially if you're interested in helping others or shaping society).

These areas often benefit from having people who understand multiple cultures and languages.

If you tell me a bit more about your interests (subjects you like, things you enjoy doing, career dreams), I can give you more personalized guidance.
